“A Project 2025 target: The IRS,” Tax Notes*Rettig Contributes to Tax Notes Article

July 30, 2024

In an article published in Tax Notes on July 23, 2024, and included in Politico's Weekly Tax newsletter on July 29, 2024, Former IRS Commissioner and Shareholder and Shareholder Chuck Rettig's insight was included on the conversation around this year's election, specifically on political influence on the IRS. The article discusses the interest in including political positions in the IRS through the Project 2025 initiative, and potential concerns from key leaders.

Politico quoted Rettig from his conversation with Tax Notes. He mentioned that increasing political nominees to the IRS would disrupt their 'impartial nature'. "The IRS does not need nor should it have additional presidential appointments for leadership positions," said Rettig.
