In an article published on November 5, 2020 on Law.com, Jennifer Karpchuk's journey to becoming a partner is highlighted. She shared that she started at Chamberlain Hrdlicka during the fall of her second year of law school and worked her way through the rest of law school part time.

Karpchuk shared that she believes making partner is truly a great achievement, but it is not a ceiling. “I want to continue to grow my practice, my connections, and achieve great results for the people and companies that depend on me,” said Karpchuk.

She also noted that the key to successful business development is all about quality of relationships, maintaining those relationships and sincerely caring about clients and their individualized needs.

“Keep building relationships—both internally and externally—and make time to do the nonbillable work, because that is what will help you to grow professionally and independently, explains Karpchuk.
