
ENERGY LITIGATION

Fletcher Farley provides counsel and representation in the resolution of disputes to businesses in the energy industry. We serve clients operating in the traditional fields (oil, gas), as well as those harvesting non-conventional resources via horizontal drilling and hydraulic/shale fracturing.

Our attorneys represent energy clients throughout Texas in disputes arising from well site accidents, equipment collapse, wellhead damage, and onsite accidents occurring during fracking or drilling operations. We additionally handle matters related to oil field logistics, applying our attorneys' substantial experience in transportation matters for economical and rapid resolution.

Fletcher Farley provides a focused case approach and, where necessary, alternative billing arrangements to accommodate client needs.
