

INSURANCE DEFENSE

Fletcher Farley cut its teeth on insurance defense cases and insurance law continues to be an important segment of our practice. Fletcher Farley brings a wealth of experience, talent and dedication to the representation of carriers and insureds.

The firm handles a wide range of insurance coverage matters involving all types of business, personal, and specialty lines policies. We represent insurance carriers in matters involving resolution of coverage, duty to defend, or duty to indemnify; corporations seeking counsel and advice related to insurance; and self-insured businesses seeking litigation services. We also represent businesses with respect to their insurance issues, including coverage, indemnification, and additional insured matters. Contributing to our reputation for excellence in this arena, Fletcher Farley's attorneys utilize negotiation, mediation, and arbitration where possible, to handle insurance law and coverage matters. Our goal is to protect our clients' interests in the most efficient manner possible.
