

WORKPLACE & INDUSTRIAL SAFETY

Fletcher Farley has long defended Texas employers against claims of liability for workplace injury, industrial accident, toxic exposure, and accidental death cases. We represent employers who subscribe to workers' compensation insurance as well as non-subscriber employers, and are thoroughly knowledgeable in all aspects of the potential liabilities and available defenses of this insurance.

Fletcher Farley's attorneys can step in immediately to manage the scene of catastrophic workplace accidents. We can control the defense of anticipated claims, preserve evidence necessary to your defense, and oversee compliance with any required governmental reporting and investigation.

Over the years, Fletcher Farley has developed specialized knowledge in defending employer's liability claims (coverage B claims) where there are allegations of gross negligence leading to fatal injury to an employee. Our RapidResponse™ Team has proven instrumental in quickly controlling investigation of such work place fatalities and the ensuing federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) investigations.

Fletcher Farley provides responsive and innovative strategies for the resolution of claims of workplace injury, including arbitration, mediation, and other dispute resolution techniques, in addition to litigation.
