Marshall Feltus was born and raised in Dallas, Texas. After graduating from Louisiana State University, she worked as an account executive for a Hispanic Advertising firm in Dallas for over two years before she attended The University of Tulsa College of Law. There she proudly served as articles editor of the Energy Law Journal and was heavily involved in numerous leadership and membership positions within legal organizations on campus. She also received an award for completing over 60 hours of community service during her three years of law school.

Marshall primarily focuses her practice on insurance defense and transportation. She enjoys serving her clients and using her legal knowledge to develop solutions for her clients' most complex civil disputes.

Outside of the office, she enjoys spending time with family and friends, traveling to new places, playing tennis and pickleball, and spoiling her miniature dachshund.
