Foster Swift attorney, Alicia W. Birach, has been named an Up and Coming Lawyer for 2017 by Michigan Lawyers Weekly. This award is given annually to 30 legal practitioners who have established a name for themselves in their first 10 years of practicing law by going above and beyond and displaying the ambition, drive and determination that sets them apart from their peers.

A Central Michigan University and Wayne State University Law graduate, Alicia is a member of the Employer Services Practice Group and practices out of Foster Swift's Southfield office. She has extensive experience representing insurance carriers, third party administrators and employers against workers' compensation claims. Additionally, she is also experienced in counseling employers on labor and employment issues.

This year's Up and Coming Lawyers ceremony luncheon will take place at the Detroit Marriott in Troy on December 7th. With Alicia receiving this award marks the third year in a row that a Foster Swift attorney has been named an Up and Coming Lawyer. Current Foster Swift attorneys Alexander Ayar and Jonathan Schwartz each received the same honor in 2016 and 2015 respectively.
