

Richardson Elevated to MDTC President

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

July 5, 2018

Foster Swift litigation attorney Joshua K. Richardson, was named President of the Michigan Defense Trial Counsel (MDTC) on July 1. Richardson served as the organization's Vice President in 2017.

The MDTC is an association of top lawyers in the state who are dedicated to the excellent representation of companies and individuals in civil litigation. Among its great impacts on the practice of law, the MDTC creates enormous awareness through its amicus briefs: appellate briefs filed by non-parties to provide support for issues having a significant impact on the practice of law in Michigan, often at the request of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Richardson practices in the firm's Lansing office primarily in the areas of commercial litigation, employment and real property litigation, information technology law and premises liability.
