IPB partner Benjamin L. Grosz was part of the "Best Practices for Your Retirement Plan Committee" panel on June 7 at the PLANSPONSOR National Conference. Among his recommendations for structuring plan committees, Ben advised "I'd say the CEO, CFO, COO and internal counsel should not be on the committee. They may have material inside information, for example, if the plan invests in company stock." He said the key for who is on the committee is a person's skill set and willingness to engage. "They don't have to be experts. They can work with outside experts," he noted.¹
