

Litigation Support Services

Miller Canfield's dedicated Litigation Support team provides national discovery coordination services to corporations - traditionally product manufacturers - involved in litigation in state and federal courts throughout the United States.

We employ a diverse team of experienced attorneys and paralegals who leverage a combination of experience, intuition and technology to help our clients' trial lawyers get to the key facts early on in matters, tell our clients' stories in the best possible light supported by the best available evidence, avoid unnecessary discovery disputes and expenses, and provide these services efficiently and affordably.

Extensive experience sets us apart. With more than 20 years of experience in Litigation Support and eDiscovery, we've developed data preservation and discovery plans, harvested terabytes of data, negotiated search terms, handled motions for protective orders and sanctions. We've reviewed and produced more than 100 million pages of hard copy and electronic documents and we are comfortable shepherding discovery in any matter—from a simple response to a third-party subpoena for a local company to complex, multi-district litigation involving multinational corporate giants. Clients choose Miller Canfield for economic and substantive consistency and value. Thanks to our carefully crafted processes and the talented people behind them, our clients get consistent, defensible work product delivered on time and on budget.

Representative Matters

In a federal court action involving antitrust and copyright infringement claims, we collected, reviewed and produced more than 80 million pages from a Fortune Global 100 business technology company's worldwide locations.

In a federal court civil rights action, we served as a Special Assistant Attorney General to design, implement and defend a discovery plan that involved the collection of more than 1 million pages from multiple locations.

In price-fixing class actions in 15 states, we developed a litigation and discovery management system for 6,900 plaintiffs, 100 complaints and over 1 million discovery documents.

For several international manufacturers, we serve as national discovery counsel and have developed systems for timely and accurate discovery compliance throughout the U.S.
