

COVID-19 Frequently Asked Questions: Employee Health Screening

June 4, 2020

As stay-home restrictions are lifted, many states and local governments are permitting businesses to open only if they are able to screen workers for symptoms of the coronavirus. Employers are put in a position to juggle work logistics, cleaning and sanitation, as well as the practicalities of health screening. A few of their most frequently asked questions include:

If you have questions about an employer's responsibilities regarding health screenings, please contact your Miller Canfield attorney or one of the following contacts.

PDF Version of this FAQ>>

This information is based on the facts and guidance available at the time of publication, and may be subject to change.