

Construction and Real Estate Litigation

- Defended a national general contractor in connection with claims for millions of dollars in “extra” work relating to the reconstruction and enlargement of a large water treatment facility in Illinois.
- Successfully represented a large Chicago-area general contractor seeking hundreds of thousands of dollars of additional costs from the City of Chicago in connection with a project for the Chicago Department of Water. The construction ran into numerous below ground interferences as well as unreasonable demands by the Water Department.
- Represented a title insurance company in connection with claims brought by owners of real estate for the fraudulent transfer of title to property insured by the title insurance company.
- Represented an environmental construction company in connection with multiple claims for millions of dollars in additional services provided in connection with the remediation of a 10-acre PCB contaminated site. The litigation involved a six-week trial, with 11 expert witnesses, resulting in a multi-million dollar verdict in favor of the client.
