

Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association Foundation Appoints Lawyer Steve Roach as Trustee

October 7, 2013

The law firm of Miller Canfield announces that the Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association Foundation has appointed lawyer Steven A. Roach (Detroit, Mich. office) as a trustee.

The Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association Foundation (DMBAF) supports a mix of programming and advocacy including the Detroit Legal Services Clinic, which provides free legal assistance to people in need, among others.

"We're thrilled to have such highly qualified candidates join us," said DMBAF Co-Chair E. Christopher Johnson, Jr. "In addition to being outstanding attorneys, each of our new trustees has proven their dedication to community service. This makes them a perfect fit for our organization, which exists to provide legal and other supports to those in need here in metro Detroit."

Roach is a principal at Miller Canfield with more than 20 years of commercial transaction and litigation experience in restructuring lending relationships and enforcing loan transactions. He has been an active participant in the Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association, the Commercial Advisory Council for the American Arbitration and has been recognized by the legal community in leading referral guides, Best Lawyers, Chambers USA and Super Lawyers Michigan, for his work.
