February 11, 2020

Miller Canfield is pleased to announce that Scott Eldridge was elected by principals of the firm to serve as one of its five Managing Directors.

Eldridge is a member of Miller Canfield's Employment and Labor Group and serves as the firm's Lansing office resident director. He is a member and past chairman of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce's Health and Human Resources Committee. Eldridge joins the firm's other Managing Directors: Thomas Colis, Danielle Mason Anderson, Joseph Fazio and Amy Johnston.

"Scott is an outstanding addition to the firm's Managing Directors. He is a widely respected attorney and leader in the community as well as within the firm," said Miller Canfield CEO Michael McGee. "Our firm is global, and continuing to grow. Leading such an organization requires commitment and vision. The entire firm is thankful for our Managing Directors and their leadership."

The firm also announced that it has promoted eight attorneys to principalship. They are:

- Jeffrey Crapko, a member of the Litigation and Dispute Resolution Group
- Caroline Giordano, a member of the Litigation and Dispute Resolution Group
- Aimee Jachym, a member of the Corporate and Transactions Group
- Barry Kaltenbach, a member of the Litigation and Dispute Resolution Group
- Ronald Liscombe, a member of the Public Finance Group
- Jeffrey Richardson, a member of the Corporate and Transactions Group
- Kamil Robakiewicz, a member of the Employment and Labor Group
- Alan Szuma, a member of the Public Finance Group
