

Miller Canfield Elects Marc Swanson to Serve on Board of Managing Directors

May 3, 2024

Miller Canfield, an international law firm headquartered in Detroit, proudly announces that Marc Swanson has been elected by the firm's principals to join its five-member Board of Managing Directors.

Marc Swanson joined Miller Canfield in 2007 and has cultivated a distinguished bankruptcy practice with a national reputation. He currently leads Miller Canfield's Bankruptcy, Restructuring and Insolvency Group.

"Marc has been instrumental in leading our bankruptcy and insolvency practice with great distinction," said Miller Canfield CEO Mike Palizzi. "His election to the Board is a testament to his robust leadership skills and his significant contributions to the firm. We are excited about his new role and confident in his ability to help guide our strategic direction. He is an outstanding lawyer and leader as well as an exceptional colleague and person."

Swanson is a graduate of Leadership Detroit, where he refined his expertise in adaptive leadership and systemic change. His proactive approach in challenging the status quo has proven invaluable in his numerous leadership roles. Notably, Swanson is currently the co-chair of the Debtor/Creditor Rights section of the Michigan Bar Association, the president of Cass Community Social Services, a non-profit organization based in Detroit and previously served as president of the Detroit Chapter of the Turnaround Management Association
