May 7, 2009

The law firm of Miller Canfield announces that Rachel Nosowsky, senior counsel in the firm's Ann Arbor, Michigan office, has been appointed to a one-year term as vice chair of the Teaching Hospitals and Academic Medical Centers Practice Group of the American Health Lawyers Association, effective June 27, 2009.

At Miller Canfield, Nosowsky practices in the areas of health care and life sciences. During her career she has represented academic medical centers and other health care providers and payers in a broad range of health law and regulatory compliance matters, in particular in the areas of corporate governance, ethics and compliance; medical staff bylaws, credentialing and peer review; physician-hospital relations; health privacy; and human research protection, biospecimen banking, and clinical trials and FDA regulation. She also has written and spoken extensively on health privacy and human research issues.

Nosowsky joined Miller Canfield in 2008 from the University of Michigan's legal staff in Ann Arbor. She served as assistant general counsel and worked primarily with the University's health system.

She received her J.D. from the University of California at Berkeley Law School and her B.A. from Carleton College.

Miller Canfield's Health Law practice consists of 30 experienced attorneys who represent hospitals, physicians and other health care providers in regulatory, transactional and litigation matters.
