

Miller Canfield Lawyer Brad Sysol Named Adjunct Professor at Thomas M. Cooley Law School

March 9, 2010

Miller Canfield principal Brad H. Sysol (Kalamazoo, Mich.) was recently named by his alma mater, Thomas M. Cooley Law School, as an adjunct professor of Environmental Law for the May-July 2010 term at the Grand Rapids campus. He'll continue his practice as a trial lawyer at Miller Canfield.

Sysol is an experienced trial and appellate lawyer focusing on complex commercial, environmental, business-torts and intellectual property litigation, class actions, and large-scale eDiscovery projects. He has handled bench and jury trials and appeals before the Michigan Supreme Court and courts of appeals, and the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Sysol received his J.D. from Thomas M. Cooley Law School and B.S.B.A. from Florida Institute of Technology.

Founded in 1972, Thomas M. Cooley Law School is the largest law school in the nation. The private, non-profit law school operates J.D. programs across Michigan in Lansing, Auburn Hills, Grand Rapids and Ann Arbor. Today, Cooley Law School has nearly 14,000 graduates across the nation and worldwide and also offers joint degree and master of laws programs.
