

Miller Canfield Lawyer Ron Baylor Elected to Board of Directors of Kalamazoo Regional Chamber of Commerce

June 13, 2011

The law firm of Miller Canfield announces that Ronald E. Baylor, a principal in the Kalamazoo office, has been elected to the board of directors of the Kalamazoo Regional Chamber of Commerce.

At Miller Canfield, Baylor counsels individuals, businesses and local governments on a broad range of environmental issues, including compliance and permitting, waste and wastewater disposal, clean-ups and environmental issues arising in the purchase, sale and redevelopment of real property. In addition he handles injury, commercial, and environmental litigation, disputes about cost recovery and insurance coverage, and defends against regulatory enforcement actions before state and federal courts and administrative agencies.

Baylor received his J.D. from Wayne State University Law School and his B.A. from Calvin College.

The Kalamazoo Regional Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors is a group of volunteers that help guide and direct the Chamber's mission, goals and overall business operations, including government and policy-making responsibilities. The Chamber's mission is to help members grow and prosper. More than 1,800 members that employ nearly 70,000 people, it is the largest private, voluntary business association in southwest Michigan.
