October 11, 2011

The law firm of Miller Canfield has the most women recognized as 2011 Top 50 Super Lawyers in Michigan. Receiving the highest point totals in the Michigan Super Lawyers 2011 nomination, are firm principals Megan P. Norris, leader of the Employment and Labor practice and a Managing Director of the firm; Anna M. Maiuri, leader of the Environmental, Energy and Regulatory practice and former Chair of the Managing Directors; Amy M. Johnston, litigator specializing in the oil and gas industry; Joanne B. Faycurry, litigator and leader of the State and Local Tax practice; Pamela C. Enslin, litigator specializing in employment and commercial litigation; and Marjory G. Basile, litigator specializing in copyrights, patents and trademarks, inaugural leader of the Intellectual Property practice, and creator of the firm's successful "Women of Miller Canfield" business relationship building initiative.

Top 10 Michigan Super Lawyer, Thomas W. Cranmer, a litigator specializing in criminal defense and white collar crime, received more points than any lawyer in Michigan.

"These are intelligent, outstanding lawyers, and leaders in their industries," said Michael W. Hartmann, CEO of Miller Canfield. "They also mentor other lawyers in the firm – men and women - and many participate in recruiting and professional development activities that contribute to our firm's success."
