4.2.25

Shutts & Bowen LLP partners Aleksey Shtivelman and David Rodrigues Gonçalves recently attended an exclusive breakfast with José Luis Martínez-Almeida, the Mayor of Madrid. The event focused on expanding economic and business opportunities between Miami and Madrid, bringing together key business and government leaders to explore new avenues for investment, trade, and collaboration.

As a global business hub, Miami is strengthening its connections with Spain, particularly Madrid, which serves as a gateway for European businesses entering the U.S. and Latin American markets.

"Shutts & Bowen has long been at the forefront of international business and legal matters, and we are excited about the opportunities ahead for companies operating between these two dynamic cities," said Aleksey Shtivelman, a partner in the firm's International Litigation and Arbitration Practice Group.

David Rodrigues Gonçalves, from the firm's Corporate Practice Group, added, "The conversation reinforced the strong economic synergies between Miami and Madrid. As both cities continue to attract multinational corporations and investors, we see immense potential for cross-border partnerships in various industries."
